

Abstract of the Disclosure

Systems, methods, and devices are provided for printhead calibration. A method includes printing a swath. A temperature rise of a printhead is measured during the swath and an operating energy of the printhead is calibrated based on 5 the measured temperature rise while performing a non-test print job.